We paid for the sign permit. So they need to apply for an electrical permit and pay for the permit, correct?

That may be the case, but you are the ones that turned in the building application with their information and you are the applicant. I am assuming your company got that info from somewhere. I do understand what you are saying though. 😊😊 But since you all are the ones overseeing the signs, please contact them and explain they need to call and make payment. The sign cannot be put up or inspected without the permits.

Hi Donna,

I just received a call from Jersey Mike's regarding this permit. We are not electricians and we do not pull electrical permits. That is up to the customer to get their own electrician. I do not know the cost or who they will be hiring. We are just sign fabricators and sign installers. We build what the customers want. Please call me so I can clear this up. They are telling me you are waiting on Diversified to pull the permit.

Thank You

Joyce Mroz
